

LANTERN LANE FARM

Where Healing Happens

Paige received a Master's of Arts degree from Liberty University in Professional Counseling. She came to love the setting and people at Lantern Lane Farm during her internship and is thrilled to be a counselor at this peaceful place.

She is passionate about helping women walk through the difficult journeys of divorce, anxiety, depression, grief and other issues women face. She works with adolescent girls and adult women to help them regain or establish self-esteem and identity utilizing cognitive behavioral therapy. She seeks creative ways to help each unique client reach their personal goals for therapy.

Paige is originally from the mountains of North Carolina. She enjoys writing, traveling, spending time with family and friends, singing with her tiny band and can often be found outdoors hiking or running on outings with her dog Ruby.
